FIRST OYSTER MONTH

SEPTEMBER.

Kernan's-"The Kentucky Belles," 8:15 Opinions Vary Regarding the Prospects-Owners of Boats Getting Ready for Business.

> There has been a glut of watermelons at the "Fishtown" wharf during the past week, but the melon season will soon be over, and the owners of pungles, sloops and schooners will be devoting their attention to the oyster traffic. In anticipation of the opening of the oyster season and the demand for the bivalves caused by the recent cool nights, a number of oyster houses about the city have already opened for > business. "The cool nights," said the proprietor of one of the places to a Star reporter this morning, "created a demand for cooked oysters, and it is really necessary to open earlier than usual. Last night's trade was almost as good as it is on Sunday nights during the winter. The fact that there is not an 'r' in the month of August has nothing to do with the oyster business. although there are many persons who imagine to the contrary. It is true, of course, that the oysters improve as the thermometer drops, but the question of only a week or ten days about the time the season opens does not

Date of Opening.

September 15 is the time fixed by law in the states of Maryland and Virginia for the opening of the oyster season, and until then the season will not be in full blast in this age that one and all can drink with benefit city. Reports from down the river and Chesapeake bay respecting the prospects do not agree. Some shippers predict a good season, while others are starting out with the cry of a scarcity of bivalves. The summer supply comes from the private beds where the oysters are planted, and this summer's stock from the vivinity of Norfolk has been exceptionally good. It is said that the trouble with bedded oysters is that they are not permitted to remain on the beds long enough to grow and get fat. Many owners of beds, it is stated, take the planted stock from the water before it has been No matter how particular you are regard- in there long enough to become acclimated.

Boat Owners Getting Ready.

Owners of boats who engage in the oyster traffic are getting their craft in readiness for the work of the season. The wear and tear to the boats is greater with the oyster trade than it is when fish or produce is being handled. Most of the boats are freshly painted and given a general overhauling at this season in order that they will be able to stand the severe weather during the winter, when it is sometimes necessary to withstand heavy ice in the river. All will be ready by the 15th of next month, and as the season progresses the number of oyster boats coming to the city will multiply. The scene of activity about the multiply. will then equal that of the fish

Lessons From the Life of Jacob.

Lessons from the life of the patriarch Jacob formed the substance of a sermon last evening at the First Baptist Church by Rev. Dr. W. W. Weeks of Toronto. He related in an interesting manner many incidents in the Hebrew's long existence and pointed out how people of today could learn from him. Referring to Jacob's determination to return to his father, he said:

"There is a desire in the heart of every one to be good, but in few is there the de-termination. They make resolutions to be good and forget all about it the next day. There are resolutions of the emotions and resolutions of the will. Jacob had the reso-

Every steamer years old, living at No. 12 O'Brien's court, coming up the river brings crowds of persons who have been spending vacations at Potomac resorts who are now returning to spend the fall and winter in this city. The summer travel from this city to points on the Potomac was unusually heavy this year, and the lower Potomac resorts, it is said, have all done a big business. Mrs. Crosby Occupies Local Pulpit.

The sermon at the Universalist Church of Our Father, corner of 13th and L streets northwest, was preached yesterday morning by Mrs. Lotta Davis Crosby, pastor of the First Universalist Church of Kent, Ohio. "Thou shalt have none other Gods before me" was her text. She asserted that each soul is a part of God and can not be separated from Him. There is, she declared, comething in each soul, no matter how degraded it may be, that cries out against sin.

"later, he formed one from his own highest conceptions. Today he strives to realize that conception within himself." The pastor of the Church of Our Father, Rev. John Van Schalck, who has been mak-ing a tour of Europe, is expected home next week. Two letters from him were read to the congregation at the service yesterday. He described a visit to the McKinley ancestral home in Ireland in one.

"In the past man desired a God," she said.

FEAST OF ST. AUGUSTINE.

Services in Commemoration at Local Church Yesterday. St. Augustine's Church, on 15th street between L and M streets northwest, celebrated the Feast of St. Augustine with solemn services yesterday. A high mass was sung at 11 a.m., and was followed by the benediction of the blessed sacrament The eulogy of the saint was delivered by Rev. J. D. Marr, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. He reviewed St. Augustine's life and works, and spoke of him as one of the beacon lights of Christianity.

In picturing St. Augustine in his search for truth before his conversion, Father

"He was a man of wonderful penetration, who, in his struggle to find the truth, de-youred every bit of knowledge with which he came in contact. He grasped an idea and wrestled with it until he had reached the very bottom. He was always striving after the truth, even in the days of his young and evil life. This same search it was which led him into the heresy of the Manicheans, upon which he expounded his doctrine of the principle of good being re-sponsible for the good in a man, and the principle of evil being responsible for the evil in him, with no responsibility for evil attaching to the element of good. It was his adherence, in early life, to that erroneous reasoning that caused him to go to the excesses in sin which marked that part

"At the age of thirty-three St. Augustine was baptized by St. Ambrose at Milan in the year 367. Having found the truth, he embraced it, studied it until he had mastered it and then expounded it."

The solemn benediction was celebrated by Rev. James F. Mackin, pastor of St. Paul's Rev. J. R. Matthews, pastor of St. Cyprian's Church, celebrant; Rev. C. M. Bart, pastor of St. Teresa's Church, deason; Rev. A. J. Olds, assistant pastor of St. Augustine's Church, subdeacon, and Rev. George A. Dougherty, secretary to the rector of the Catholic University of America, master of ceremonies.

The clergymen present in the sanctuary during the ceremonles were Rev. J. T. Whelan of St. Mary's Star of the Sea of Baltimore, Rev. F. X. McKenney of St. Charles College, Maryland; Rev. P. J. O'Connor, pastor of St. Vincent de Paul's Church, and Rev. Paul Griffith, pastor of St. Augustine's Church.

THE WAR IN THE EAST.

Theme of Rev. E. L. Hubbard's Discourse Last Night. Rev. E. L. Hubbard preached last night at the McKendree M. E. Church with the war between Russia and Japan as his text. In his introduction he said:

"Russia can whip Japan while the Japs are mad. The little fellow is so mad that he will climb all over the Cossack's back. He is so mad that he don't care if they kill him. Russia wants a southern port and no one can blame her for wanting it. But she is not 'mad' with Japan or China. and she would be well contented to see them go to their homes in peace. But Japan looks upon the conduct of the great power of the north as a menace to her future, and every little Jap is 'mad' and has blood in

The lesson he drew was that a person who is "mad" with sin will throw his whole soul into the battle against it and be very likely to come out victorious.

The minister devoted some time to the discussion of the moral standards, saving that acts marked as wrong in the Bible should always be considered so. "But," he said, "there are other things. things not in the book, about which people differ in morals. All the great men of al the ages have differed on every great ques-tion. When the differences arise, men are prone to think that he who differs from them has not a level head. No man has drawn, nor has any man a right to draw a line in morals and say that all on one side is right and all on the other side is wrong. What is right for one man because terpretation of God's mandate makes it so, may be infinitely wrong for another man. I know where God's side is for me, and I might be able to come pretty near showing you where God's side is for you-because that is in a way my business. But after mine what is right and what is wrong for Mr. Hubbard also took occasion to score "Bishop Potter's saloon," saying it repre-sented an effort to get respectability into the liquor traffic

With a bullet wound in his breast, Abraham White, a plasterer, thirty-three years old, was brought to the city Saturday night from Dunn Loring, Va., and taken to the Emergency Hospital for treatment. He was on his way to his home at Wiehle, it is stated, after working all day at Clarendon Heights, and met an Italian boy named Fred Phoenix. It is alleged that Phoenix and a brother of White had some trouble a few days ago and the affair of Saturday grew out of that difficulty. The police were notified of the shooting and were asked to be on the lookout for the Italian, but he was not caught here.

Phoenix has been employed on the railroad near where the shooting occurred. White said at the hospital that he had teased the boy and the shooting followed. It was stated at the hospital this morning that the wounded man was doing well.

wonderful power of God, seen everywhere,

"In all of Christ's ministry, He spoke very little about the church. His sermons were always pertaining to the kingdom of Goda kingdom whose law is righteousness, and which is ultimately to fill the whole earth. To seek it first should be the prime end and purpose of life."
